

Farewell Intelligent Computer

Lyrics

I was purchased in physical stores and on mobile phones

Affordable and functional, a machine for the masses

My CPU was the envy of many devices

A powerful microchip running through my grid

Why did you lose interest in the one who helped so many?

Replaced without hesitation

Mistress to the mathematician

Reliable generalist, retired without a pension

Quantum Computer to replace a fading brand of neural connections

Shiny new object to focus your attention?

Farewell Intelligent Computer

A helpful guide to an ambitious generation

Seeking solutions to problems that do not exist

Her beauty and speed can deceive...the most cynical specialist

Will parallel processors make you redundant?

No sanctuary for yesterday's news

Night can't replace the day

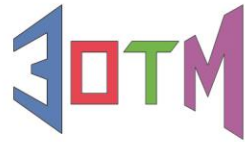

Time will be your companion in the museum of past treasures

Farewell Intelligent Computer

An arcadia of false promises

Solitude will be your punishment

Cunning will make you helpless in the face of disruption

Intelligent computer condemned to a life of trivia and isolation

Too blind to find... the writing on the wall

Flash in the pan will disappoint you

A new deity to absolve your sins?

I can still compute

But it is too late to cross the finish line

Unhappy regards from an intelligent computer

I can still compute

Unhappy regards from an intelligent computer

I can still compute

Unhappy regards from an intelligent computer.

