

Mystery Island

Lyrics

Gather round and hear the story

Myth born in times past

A son of Poseidon and Clieto

The ten kings, ten sons of Poseidon, each would rule a portion

Look north and one sees the high peaks

Lowlands in the south brought forth her bounty

Embraced by tin and brass

Walls protect the city and her concentric rings

Red, white and black marble adorn the buildings

What could surpass the island of...

Can you find her?

Just look across the columns

Held in place by the strength of Hercules

There is no compass to guide your steps

For you have entered the sea of...

The rough waters a resting place for many a vessel

She was once pure and virtuous, but corruption set in

Disease of hubris was found in their hearts

A need to control the nations was too much to bear

Her power stretched across the continents

How many lived under the yoke of slavery?

When will freedom finally come?

Tyrant of the seas would meet her match

Defeated by a people named after a daughter of Zeus

Fate became angry with the island of...mystery

Her misdeeds could not be tolerated anymore

Destroyed by an earthquake, she sank into the deep

Never to be seen again
